HARVARD UNIVERSITY LOSES A GREAT CENTRE RUSH IN JAFFRAY.

Classed by Experts as Being Almost at the Hend of Players in His Posttion-An Evil That Has Been Allowed to Creep Into Roller Polo Games-Will Fitz Fight

The death of Persy Malcolm Jaffray, Harvard's noted centre rush, who played on the victorious eleven against both the University of Pennsylvania and Yale last fall, was a shoel to local college men yesterday. Jaffray was such a powerfully built young man that few beileved that he could succumb to sudden illness. In all the estimates made by experts when the football season closed, Jaffray was placed almost at the top of the list of centres. He would probably have had an indisputable title to the lead had it not been for trivial injuries in both the Old Penn and the Yale games In the battle with the Quakers in Cambridge on Nov. 5, Jaffray surprised the large crowd by outplaying the celebrated Overfield in the first half. He kept up his good work in the second period, but owing to a wrenched knee he was forced to give way. In New Haven Jaffray went against the Rev. Mr. Cutten. He played phenomenal football up to the middle of the second half and then his knee received another wrench. When Burnett was substi-uted for him Jaffray said to friends on the side

"My leg has been very painful ever since the game started. But now that Harvard looks like a winner I feel that I can drop out." When the game ended Jaffray joined in the cheering and was one of the first men to ulder Capt. Dibblee for a triumphal march off the field. He was the biggest man ever seen on a leading 'varsity eleven, yet in spite of his height and weight he was a whirlwind in speed. Jaffray was also one of the most popular men in the Eastern universities.

If the promoters of the American Boller Polo Association want to be successful they should to all in their power to eliminate an evil that has been allowed to flourish unmolested. some of the teams have not yet secured a full quota of players, so that when they have gone upon the floor to meet opponents they hav called upon the services of players belonging to other teams. The other night a team play ing in this city showed some good talent, so good, in fact, that the spectators fixed the eleverest experts in mind for future reference. A few nights later another team played here and the spectators were surprised to see in its make-up some of the men who were members of the visiting five a few nights before. The latter experts played under assumed names, but they were quickly identified.

There is such a thing as a puglifat taking too long a rest. When Walcott fought "Mysterious" Billy Smith recently and was beaten his manager told him as he was leaving the ring that he peeded work. "Your legs didn't work right. You have taken such a long rest in order to get your hands in good shape that you've lost your speed. Now you'll have to work harder than ever." This was the criticism Walcott received. The same thing applies to other noted puglists, among whom are Lacisin Walcott received. The same thing applies to other noted pugilists, among whom are Lavigne, Dixon and others. Dixon was away off in form when he met Erne two years ago in this city, but lately, because of exceptionally hard work both in training and in the ring he has come back almost to his best form. Those who appreciate these facts will naturally wonder how Fitzsimmons's long lay-off will affect him when he decides to re-enter the ring. But it should be remembered that Fitz keeps in pretty fair trim by constantly punching the bag and by sparring bouts with his partner on the road.

Fitzsimmons adheres to his statement that Fitzsimmons adheres to his statement that he will flight nobody unless the battle goes to a fluish. He says that is the way he won his spurs and that he is not content to lose them in any other way. Although a chance to fight some first-class man in this State has been offered to him, the champion declares that he does not care for limited round contests. The winner of the MoCoy-Sharkey flight will probably challenge Fitz to meet, him somewhere in this State. If the Cornishman accepts, he can command a purse of at least $25,000 and receive a share of the gate receipts that may beat all previous records. The sporting public is anxious to see Fitzeimmons in the ring. All of the other purilistic stars have been looked at while in action, but Fitz has yet to make his bow to a metropolitan crowd.

Billy Keeler of the Baltimores, who, for two years past, has earned the title of "champion batter, of the League." was engaged in conversation with several ball players at the recent League meeting. A couple of cranks who had dropped into the Fifth Avenue Hotel to look the celebrities over stopped short when they eaught sight of Keeler, and one said to the other: "Do you see that quiet little fellow over there?"

there?"
Yes: what about him?"
"Don't you know who he is?"

"Why, that's Keeler of the Baltimores. He's been the champion knocker of the League for the last two years." As Keeler never said a word against any-body in his life those who heard the crank's innocent remark had a good laugh. So did Keeler when the story was told to him.

Columbia University Defeats Cutler Schoo at the St. Nicholas Rink.

Columbia University won a comparatively easy game from the Outler schoolboys at the St. Nicholas Rink last night. The collegians were much heavier and older than their opponents. The first half was all in Columbia's favor, and it looked as if they would smother the schoolboys, but the latter took a great brace and the Blue and White representatives were able to score only one more goal. The final score was 5 to nothing in Columbia's

A large number of collegians and schoolboys were present when the respective teams faced off shortly after 8 o'clock. Henderson of off shortly after 8 o'elock. Henderson of Columbia secured the puck and ran it down to Cutier's territory. From that time on it was aimost continually around Cutier's goal. The first score was made by Beckett. He secured the puck from Ward of Outler and dexteronsly ran it through the entire Cutier team, finally driving it through the goal posts after five minutes of play. In the next face-off Henderson, one of Columbia's forwards, got the puck. It was taken from him by Ward, but Henderson again secured it by some fine sekating and rushed it down the floor, through Cutier's goal posts, for Columbia's second goal in one minute. The passing of Beckett and Henderson was especially noteworthy, these players almost monopolising the play.

Henderson scored the third goal for Columbia, mainly through the efforts of Williams and Fell. After Williams had got the puck he passed it to Pell and it alternated between them until it was directly in front of Cutier's goal. Then Henderson ran it through Auchinclose's legs, and Buck, Cutler's goal tender, was caught napping. The Columbia delegation yelled their college cry, and Beckett made them repeat it five minutes later by scoring Columbia's fourth had. In the second half Huntington skated around Fosdick, getting the puck and driving it through the goal posts for Columbia's fifth seal. Cutler's showing was surprisingly good in this half, and the school should make it interesting for any of the teams in the Interesting for any Columbia secured the puck and ran it down to Chief Consul Belding Anxious to Increase the State Membership.

Chief Consul Belding has issued a general letter to Consuls that appeals equally to every member of the New York division, L. A. W. who has the interests of the organization at heart. In part the Chief Consul writes:

It is my desire to have the membership of the L. A. W. enlarged in order to advance the work of side paths and good roads in which the League is engaged. Pennsylvania, having passed us and se cured the first place in membership, has registered s yow that New York shall be kept in second place. There is no copyright on this vow business, how ever, and our loyal local Consuls have registered several hundred vows that New York will again, and that shortly, attain the proud and commanding position so long held. In view of the numposition so long held. In view of the number of wheelmen in your locality, the League membership there is not what it should be. Will you not go among the League members in your vicinity and ask them to aid you in placing the L. A. W. membership in your locality at a figure to be proud of? Will you not at once talk with your cyclist friends and try and induce them by argument and invitation to join the League? More than half our members are obtained in this way. Talk to them of road improvement, side paths, wheelmen's rights, signboards and the moral influence a big organization has with the politicians and the law-makers.

Edward F. Gerbereux, Chairman of the Race Committee of the Associated Cycling Clubs, said yesterday that so far as his personal ideas were involved he believed that the association should not commit itself to the support of L. A. W. outlaws, but should run an amateur road race to Tarrytown on New Year's eve, and should bar out any riders who had been deelared professionals by any organization. As the new association of racing men has not yet suspended any rider or disciplined them in any way, this declaration from Chairman Gerbersux means, practically that he favors the Associated Chubs supporting the L. A. W. Gerbereux went even so far as to say that he thought the race would be one of amateurs only. The start will be from the Park Circle at Fifty-ninth street at 12:01 o'clock on Jan. 1.

BERNSTEIN AND O'DONNELL DRAW. A Mot Twenty-Round Fight at the Greenwood A. C. Joe Bernstein, the east side featherweight, and Billy O'Donnell of Memphis met last night in what proved to be one of the best conested twenty-round bouts seen hereabouts. The combat was decided at the Greenwood A , Brooklyn, and the small clubhouse was packed. Charley Harvey was the referee. The result, a draw, seemed to please the crowd.

Two featherweights, Al Allen of New York "Toner" Burns of Brooklyn, opened the show with a twelve-round bout at 118 pounds. Allen proved to be the easiest proposition imaginable. The bout was stopped in the second cound and the decision given to Burns.

The abrupt ending of the preliminary caused quite a wait before the stellar boxers ut in an appearance. Bernstein's attendants were Charley Horan, William Witman and Charley Fatte, O'Donnell was handled by Jim Lavelle, John Graft and handled by Jim Lavelle, John Gratt and Jack Smith. They put up their hands at 122 pounds. Both weighed in at 3 o'clock. Rid Brood of Clevetand, previous to the "go." issued a challenge to the victor.

O'Donnell went at Bernstein savagely. The latter was very quick and showered some stiff punches on his opponent's head and body. O'Donnell deliberately struck Joe in the break, and the crowd yelled "Foul!" In trying to lead in the second Bernstein scrambled to the floor. He was up quickly and fought back hard. Bernstein kept his stomach unguarded and Billy landed twice in the wind. Both seemed cautious for a brief period in the third, but when they came together they let go for keeps. Bernstein landed quite hand on Billy's mouth, and the latter returned with some good lefts in the wind. The fourth round was lively, but no Injury was done. Bernstein started the fifth with a vicious lead. O'Donnell ducked quickly and clinched. Bernstein hit when embraced and was warned. Both seemed used up when they toed the centre for the sixth round. O'Donnell made the first pass, and Bernstein's left glove lighted directly on O'Donnell's right optic. Joe followed it up with lunges on the stomach, and O'Donnell began to hug. The seventh and eighth rounds resulted in brisk fighting.

Bernstein's rushes were somewhat checked in the ninth by receiving a series of left uppercuts in the wind. The tenth round was rather tame. Bernstein opened the eleventh by finding O'Donnell's mouth with a straight left, and it staggered the Memphis boxer, but O'Donnell showed his hand by planting Joe about the body with good judgment. O'Donnell's science apparently deserted him in the twelfth, for Bernstein almost crowded him with blows on the face and wind. Bernstein was the aggressor in the thirteenth. He was too erraite, though, and some of his swings went wide of their mark. The fourteenth was exciting. It was nip and tyick. O'Donnell's had great recuperative powers, and managed to recover when it looked like an inevitable defeat for him. In this round Bernstein almost sent Billy through the ropes with a crack on the jaw. From this time on the men fought evenly.

McKeever Outpoints Broderick.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.-Charley McKeever had the better of Tom Broderick of Vonkers tonight in every round but the sixth. He played all round his man, hitting almost at will, although e did not do a great deal of physical injury. In the first round both men went in for keeps and both landed. The round was in the local boy's favor. Broderick opened the second in a businessilke way, landing a right on the law, Mac came back with hard right and left. Light sparring completed the round. Broderick again started well in the third planting his left on McKeever's face, then McKeever mixed it up, leading with right and left pretty muchat will. The round closed all in Mac's favor. The fourth started fast, McKeever doing all the leading. He landed right and left several times. Broderick was at McKeever's mercy in the fifth, the former not getting back once. The last round began fast. Broderick showed better form than at any other time, and seemed anxious to redeem himself, landing stiff rights and lefts on his opponent. In the latter part of the round, Mac tried for a knock-out, landing stiff right smit left jabs, fighting the New Yorker into his worner. Broderick was groggy when the gong sounded. McKeever was in grand form. In the first round both men went in for keeps lockey Club Stewards Extend Clemency to the Noted Plunger and to "Doc" Street. Some matters of unusual importance to horsemen were disposed of yesterday after-noon at a meeting of the stewards of the Jockey Club. Those present were August Bel-mont, J. H. Subsequently, on being refused admission to the Morris Park track, he got an injunction against the Westchester Racing Association. The injunction was set aside, but Grannan kept at it in the courts and finally gained the judicial decision. The officials of the Westchester Association appealed the case, and at longth entried theirpoint. Since then Grangained the judicial deision. The officials of the Westchester Association appealed the case, and at length carried theirpoint. Since then Grannan has been operating on a modest scale out West, and yesterday's menejful termination of his irksome sentence of banishment will doubtless flad him penitent and graveful.

The S. W. Street referred to in the Jockey Club builetin has been well known to horsemen for years as "Doc" Street, and his offence was doubtful practices in connection with the racing at St. Asaph. A team of Australian cricketers will visit England again during the season of 1899. Ar extensive schedule was drawn up for them at a meeting at "Lord's," London, last week, at which it was resolved that, in addition to the which it was resolved that, in addition to the regular games against the county teams, there would be five "teat" matches—All England vs. Australia. H. G. S. POLICE STOP THE FIGHT AT HART-FORD IN FOURTEENTH ROUND.

tion-He Is Knocked Down Three Times -The Syracuse Man Outclasses His Rival from the Start and Punishes Him Badly. Hantronn, Conn., Dec. 23 .- At the biggest fistic encounter ever held in this State, Tommy Ryan defeated Dick O'Brien in fourteen rounds before the Charter Oak A. C., at the Collseum here to-night. Ryan had his man floored three times in the fourteenth round, and the Lawiston lad was so groupy that the police stepped in and stopped the fight. The bout was scheduled for twenty-five rounds at the middleweight limit. A purse of $2,000 was hung up, 75 per cent, going the the winner.

The men stepped into the ring at 9:15 clock in the pink of condition. In Ryan's orner were George Siddons and Billy Dacey of Hartford and young Chase of Syracuse. Ryan weighed in at 148 pounds. Johnny Gorman. Jimmy Lane, Red McDonald and Eddie Connolly looked out for O'Brien, who tipped the scales at 158 pounds.

Finst Round,-Both men sparred easily, warming up and looking each other over. Ryan landed his left on O'Brien's eye twice, and this was the beginning of an onslaught which the police had to stand during the entire fight. BECOND ROUND.—Ryan set the pace a little faster, and tried his left frequently in O'Brien's face and sent several rib roasters with his right. O'Brien had not got steam up and anded only a couple of times with harm.

Third Round.—Ryan landed his left whenever he pleased, swinging one or two stiff rights into the wind for good measure. His repeated onslaughts on O'Brion's face had its effect, and the latter's nose was bleeding freely at the end of the round. His eye showed signs of discoloration and was swelling rapidly.

FOURTH ROUND.—This round was hotter yet. Rvan got in some cornerackers with his left on O'Brien's face. O'Brien landed one or two vicious swings on Tommy's jaw and a terrific body blow. Both men were tired at the finish. Firth Round.—Hyan had all the better of this round, with steady jabs of his left into O'Brien's face, and soon had the damaged eye bleeding freely. O'Brien was wholly on the defensive.

SEVENTH BOUND.—O'Brien came up fresh and got in a good left on Byan's mouth. Ryan came back with a corker on the nose which started the blood afresh. A couple of lefts on the ribs and a right swing on the jaw which followed keep O'Brien thinking hard for a minute. Ryan landed frequently, and the round ended in a red-hot mix-up.

Eight'r ROUND.—O'Brien made some vicious swings in this round, but Ryan's eleverness rendered them harmless, while he kept up his old tactics.

Ninth Round.—This was warm, and was ever he pleased, swinging one or two stiff

NINTH ROUND.—This was warm, and was

NINTH ROUND—This was warm, and was marked toward the close by a Berce onslaught by Ryan, in which he whipped some stiff blows into O'Brien's face and body, while O'Brien landed but seldom.

TENTH ROUND—Ryan set the pace at a rapid gait and there were stiff exchanges, in which O'Brien landed some telling blows, but Ryan had much the better of the round.

ELEVENTH ROUND—Hyan landed lightly on the body with his left and followed it with a right smash on the jaw. He then landed a terrific right and left swing on the jaw that sent O'Brien through the ropes. O'Brien came up in good shape, though, and finished the round without further serious damage.

the ropes. O'Brien came up in good shape, though, and finished the round without further serious damage.

Twelfer Hound, Bond, Byan started in to finish his man and landed heavily with right and left on face and body. O'Brien couldn't find him, and finished the round much the worse for wear. Thirtenish Hound, Byan started with right and left, doing terrible execution. O'Brien's face was covered with blood from the nose and the damaged eye, which was now closed and badly out. O'Brien rotalisted to the best of his ability, but Ryan had all the better of it. Ryan put his straight left into O'Brien's face with telling regularity, and as the roundended he sent a terrific left into O'Brien's face with telling regularity, and as the roundended he sent a terrific left into O'Brien's haw that nearly put him out.

Fourtement Hound,—Ryan landed right and left with terrible force. O'Brien, bloody and dazed, did his best to stave off the onslaught, but was helpless. Ryan led with the left to the body and smashed in a stunning right on the law, following with another, and O'Brien went down. He came up as the referee counted six and Ryan was at him again with right and left. Another right on the law sent O'Brien to the floor again, but he pluckily staggered to his feet at the count of seven. Eyan drove in a rain of blows on law and chin. O'Brien tottered and fell, and the police stopped the fight.

The decision was formally swarded to Ryan amid thunderous applause.

* ASHORE IN THE BREECHES BUOY.

All Hands Except Captain, Mate and Cook Leave the Stranded Bark Auburndale. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 23.-Seven memers of the erew of the bark Auburndale bound from Buenos Ayres for New York, which ran ashore near Ship Bottom Life-Saving Station last evening, were landed to-day in the breeches buoy by the crews from the Harvey's, Cedars and Ship Bottom stations. All are now on land except Capt Dow and the mate and cook, all of whom refuse to leave the bark, believing they are not in immediate danger. The landing was effected without serious accident, although each man was ducked by the sagging of the ropes on which the breeches buoy ran. The rescued seamen were taken to Ship Bottom and received food and warm dlothing.

The Auburndale lies in an easy position and wrecking tug is alongside. In spite of the pounding she received she is apparently sound and has only two inches of water in her hold. It is thought she can be floated with a little hard work.
